

About Xpress Concepts

Last Updated Sunday, 25 May 2008

Xpress Concepts original was set up to provide pure web site design. We now offer branding and IT support, as these services are required by our customers.

Who are we? We presently we are just me Edward Miller but I hope that as our reputation and customer base expands we can bring a few others into the XPress Concepts fold. I have well over a decades experience in the support of IT systems and am well versed in many areas of technology. Maybe I am a geek or a nerd but I know I have the skills required to support my customers and if you decide to employ my services I guarantee you will be satisfied with the service you receive.

Based in the village of Tattenhall near Tarporley and Chester, Xpress Concepts are providers of excellence in IT support to both individuals and small businesses around Cheshire, North Wales and the rest of the North West. A local IT support provider that is approachable and friendly and will take the time to go through any aspect of your computer or home/business network is what are customers are asking for and it is the service we are happy to provide.
